SENATOR BROMM: I would not.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, you don't...you don't...you didn't know at that time what you know now. If you didn't know what was going to happen to the Titanic,...

SENATOR BROMM: ...to the Titanic.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...would you accept a state room under those circumstances?

SENATOR BROMM: I...I would probably be busy elsewhere.
(Laughter)

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you, Senator Bromm. I want to ask Senator Suttle a question, because she might help me make a point.

SENATOR CUDABACK: Senator Suttle, would you respond?

SENATOR SUTTLE: Yes.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Senator Suttle, if you didn't know the fate of the Titanic and they were going to give you a state room, free of charge, would you accept it?

SENATOR SUTTLE: I certainly would.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Now, some hours into the voyage cold water was flowing through that ship and it was up to your waist, would you, if you had known that was going to happen, have taken that state room?

SENATOR SUTTLE: No, I wouldn't have.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Now let's say that you did not have a state room, but you were in a craft that was in the area of the Titanic, and somebody said, I know the Titanic is sinking, but you can get on and be immortalized in history as one of those who went down with the Titanic. Would you get on?

SENATOR SUTTLE: No.
